This violent criminal was mistakenly released into your community.
Multiple Murders.

In June 2005, violent criminal Patrick Selepak was mistakenly released from prison into our community. Just seven months later, Selepak brutally tortured and murdered three innocent people, including a young married couple expecting their first child.

Mistakes.

Governor Jennifer Granholm and her state prison director admitted that Selepak was mistakenly released by the Michigan Department of Corrections.

(Source: WKAR, 10/2/06; Detroit Free Press, 3/22/06)

At least six people are dead because of the Granholm Administration's bureaucratic mistakes. An independent review found that the Granholm Administration made several errors that allowed the Selepak murders to take place.

(Source: House Subcommittee on Accountability and Public Safety, Final Report and Recommendations, September 2006)

Mismanagement.

Today, despite the murders and the investigation confirming these mistakes, Granholm's prison director is still on the job. And today, 2,621 parole violators continue to roam our streets.

(Source: House Subcommittee on Accountability and Public Safety, Final Report and Recommendations, September 2006)
GOVERNOR GRANHOLM AND HER STATE PRISON DIRECTOR.

If they can’t do the job, why are they still on the job?

MICHIGAN FAMILIES JUST CAN’T AFFORD ANY MORE MISTAKES.